FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

LONDON, July 26.—The Newa statement that Turkey consented to send troops to Egypt, as the Porte has not recognized the appropriateness of the suggestions to send troops and now proposes to discuss the conditions under which they shall be sent, a process which, if carried out according to Turkish notions, a diplomacy might occupy six months.

DUBLIN, July 26.—The weather in Ireland has improved considerably in the past few days, though potato blight has appeared in badly drained ground. There is a splendid crop in most parts of the country.

Hon. Francis Fitzgerald, a Baron of the Exchequer of Ireland, has finally resigned his office, owing to an objection to the duties imposed on him under the Repression Bill.

LONDON, July 26.—The Most Rev. Patrick A. Feehan, Archbishop of Chicago, will be elected a Cardinal at the next Consistory.

In the House of Commons the address thanking the Queen for calling out the reserves was approved without division.

At Goodwood the Sussex stakes was won by Comte Alfred, Battledore second, Datch Over third.

ALEXANDRIA, July 26.—The British have mined the railway embankment at Ramleh, as a precaution against night attack.

LONDON, July 26.—A detective Irish Constabulary is to be sent to Caracas, to receive O'Brien, who is held on suspicion of being one of the murderers of Lord Frederick Cavendish.

Children Burned.—Election. A Nevada City dispatch says: The bodies of two missing children were found yesterday in the ruins of a burned building.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 26.—A dispatch from the Provincial election, which came off to-day, says: Victoria returns Beaver, Government; Daire and Drake, Opposition, and Duck, Independent. In the adjacent district John and McTavish, Opposition, defeated Humphreys and McIlmely, the Government candidates. Humphreys was the Provincial Secretary. In Nanaimo Dunsmyr and Rapchold, Opposition, are returned. The Government has lost six seats so far as heard from. The Island, with three districts, are yet to be heard from.

River Telegrams. EVANSVILLE, July 26.—Arrived: Vint Shinkle, Memphis, 11:30 p.m. Departed: Vint Shinkle, Cincinnati, 12:15 a.m. Partly cloudy, with signs of rain. River 9.6-10 feet and falling. No business.

Penitentiary for Life. CINCINNATI, July 26.—A Times-Star special from Bucyrus, Ohio, says: In the case of John Smith, alias James Hogen, on trial for the murder of David Snodgrass, the Marshal at Crestline, the jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree, and the prisoner was sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

The Crops. CHICAGO, July 26.—A Milwaukee special says: Trusty correspondents in the territory drained by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad system, write from 293 points respecting the grain outlook. The burden of the reports is a large wheat field, half a crop of corn, and the largest oat crop ever known. In nearly all parts of Minnesota the weather favors a stout growth and full head. Fine weather stopped the rust, which appeared in a few counties, and fine crops are insured.

The Hessian fly appeared only to vanish promptly. Winter grain is being harvested and spring wheat can be out in about ten days. In some parts of the State, notably in the northern part, corn will be a total failure, except for fodder. Weeds fostered by wet and cold weather having choked the corn, the crop will be about one-third the average. All parts of the State promise an enormous yield of oats and excellent rye. In Iowa harvesting is farther advanced and corn is improving very rapidly; otherwise the condition of crops in the two States is nearly identical. Chinch bugs have appeared, but too late to do any damage. About

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

Licenses to marry were issued yesterday to two couples. Cupid was quiet this forenoon.

Politics, putty and poll taxes are the principal subjects discussed at the courthouse. The clerks are all taking things easy.

Judge Hammond will charge the jury in the Treadwell-Anglo-American Packing Company case at 3 o'clock this evening.

The lawyers can't even scare up a habeas corpus case.

A deed was recorded to-day from James L. Lowrey to F. W. Sherrill, trustee.

One of the most beautiful and massive floral offerings ever seen in this city was sent as a token of respect and sympathy to the residence of Mrs. Speed, on Adams street, yesterday, as the gift of Messrs. Frank Chandler, H. C. Townsend, J. P. Dwyer and J. E. Aglar, all prominent western railway men, and friends of the late James Speed. It was in the form of a shaft or column, resting on a double pedestal and surmounted by a dove, the design typifying peace, and the arrangement of the various flowers was in exquisite taste.

The commutator of the Brush electric machine got on a spree last night, took too much electricity and burned itself out, and in consequence there was no light last night. The company telegraphed for a new commutator at once, and expect to have the lights burning again to-morrow night.

Church Picnic.

A grand picnic is to be given on Thursday, at the Exposition Building, by the Baptist Seven Church Union, which includes the Beal Street Baptist church, Salem Baptist church, St. John Baptist church, Union Avenue Baptist church, St. Paul Baptist church, Central Baptist church (Caney street), Macedonia Baptist church, Pilgrim Rest Baptist church, Mt. Nebo Baptist church, Mt. Zion Baptist church, First Chelsea Baptist church (Read's), Ebenezer Baptist church. It is the first effort to give a picnic under the auspices of the Seven Church Union, and as each church is to have a refreshment table, the affair will doubtless be enjoyable in the highest degree.

Wesley's Tact.

The following anecdote of the founder of Methodism has, we believe, never been published. It reaches us from a trustworthy source, and it illustrates in a remarkable manner the mingled tact and piety of that eminent man.

Although Wesley, like the Apostles, found that his preaching did not greatly affect the mighty or the noble, still he numbered some families of good position among his followers. It was at the house of one of these that the incident here recorded took place.

Wesley had been preaching, and a daughter of a neighboring gentleman, a girl remarkable for her beauty, had been profoundly impressed with his exhortations.

After the sermon Wesley was invited to this gentleman's house to luncheon, and with himself one of his preachers was entertained. This preacher, like many of the class at that time, was a man of plain manners, and not conscious of the restraints of good society.

The fair young Methodist sat beside him at the table, and he noticed that she wore a number of rings. During a pause in the meal the preacher took hold of the young lady's hand, and raising it in the air, called Wesley's attention to the sparkling jewels.

"What do you think of this, sir," he said, "for a Methodist hand?"

The girl turned crimson. For Wesley, with his known and expressed aversion to finery, the question was a peculiarly awkward one. But the aged Evangelist showed a tact which a Chesterfield might have envied. He looked up with a quiet, benevolent smile, and simply said, "The hand is very beautiful."

The blushing beauty had expected something far different from a reproof wrapped up with such felicity in a compliment. She had the good sense to say nothing; but when, a few hours later, she again appeared in Wesley's presence, the beautiful hand was stripped of every ornament except those which nature had given.

Cracking His Heels at Eighty-Four. Albany Journal.

The other morning in a grocery store some one remarked to Mr. Thomas Dunn, one of our wealthiest citizens, now in his eighty-fourth year, that he was "getting old."

"Pshaw!" said Mr. Dunn. "I will show you that if I am old I have some life in me yet." Hanging his cane on the railing of his desk and placing his hat on a pyramid of canned goods, Mr. Dunn stepped to an alcove formed by the arrangement of goods and suddenly springing into the air with the lightness of a latter day acrobat cracked his heels to-gether twice before touching the floor again. As if this was not sufficient to convince the most skeptical of his ability, he repeated the feat. Others present attempted it, but did not succeed.

A WOMAN'S HEROISM.

During a Flood She Clings to a Swaying Tree and Saves Two Children.

Onesla Sentinel.

In connection with the White Breast Bottom, Iowa, storm, we wish to speak of the heroic conduct of Mrs. Carey, a young married lady, who was stopping with Mrs. Wiles for the night. About 9:30 or 10 p.m. the banks of the creek began to overflow, and soon the water began coming into the house; the whole bottom was a black and roaring body of water; the rain was pouring down in torrents; the cloud overhung the sky like a velvet curtain, and the thunder was terrific. Mrs. Carey took one little boy, aged about nine, and Mrs. Wiles' baby, but six weeks old, left the house and started for the high ground. Reaching the garden fence, perhaps 100 yards from the house, she found the current so strong that she could not keep her footing. Her clothes became entangled in a barb wire fence.

Fortunately she was at the foot of a tree. Helping the boy to climb the tree, she handed him the baby to hold a minute. The waters were raging all about her, and were rapidly rising. She must act quickly. With great presence of mind she disengaged herself by tearing her dress from her person and swung herself into the tree.

Assisting the boy to climb further up she took the baby and held it and herself by one foot and one hand to that swaying tree for three long hours and till rescued by men, who swam in to her and brought her and the children away by the aid of ropes. When the men reached her she said, "save the baby first." The heroism of this noble little woman who thus saved these children—the children of another—deserves to be mentioned in song.

Rivers and Harbors.

Special to the Country Journal.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Conference Committee has come to an agreement on the River and Harbor Bill, and it will be reported as soon as Mr. Page returns from New York. The report will give $30,000 for the survey of the Hennespin canal and $100,000 for the Delaware and Chesapeake canal. It will recommend the appropriation of about $350,000 for the Potomac flats. The extra million for the Mississippi river has been struck out. It is believed that both Houses of Congress can be brought to concurrence on this report, although the House will be very bitter. In addition to the railroad influence, some of the old-fashioned Democrats will hold that it is unconstitutional to build canals.

There is only one State in the United States, and only one Representative in Congress, that has no interest in the River and Harbor Bill," said Representative Cassidy, of Nevada, to a correspondent. "The State," he continued, "is Nevada, and I am the Representative. We haven't got a river, or a creek even, in the entire State of Nevada. I did not like the idea of our State getting left in this combination affair, and united up and down the mountains, but could not find a bit of water we wanted to improve. It is a cold day when Nevada is left, but we got the go-by in this bill. Still there will be some money left after this bill is passed, and I'll make a big pull to get some of it for a public building at Carson City, which we need very much. This haul on the Treasury," continued Mr. Cassidy, "reminds me of an occurrence in the early days of California. The Legislature had been in session the allotted time, and was about to adjourn. Everybody had got his bill and appropriation through, but just before the motion to adjourn was put, a member rose to a question of privilege. 'What is it?' asked the Speaker. 'Mr. Speaker,' answered the member, 'I ask you as a question of privilege, how have all the bills and drains and bails that have got through, how much money is left in the Treasury?' The Speaker made a little calculation, and answered: 'About $100,000.' 'Then,' said the member, 'I move to take her.' In the raking in this case I want to get money enough to put up one public building in Carson City."

Toilets for Dogs.

London Globe.

There are 1869 workpeople, male and female, who subsist in Paris by making personal decorations and habitments for pet dogs, or otherwise paying attention to the canine race. The trade done by them is estimated at a total of five or six millions of francs, or nearly a quarter of a million sterling, so that it may be easily guessed how great a commotion is caused among this section of society, as often as the dogs come round, and the inflexible rules of the French police as to muzzling these animals are again put in force against their owners.

The rage for dressing up canine pets has long prevailed in France to a much greater extent than on this side of the channel, and has assumed extravagant proportions. The Fagaro gives examples of the most notable fashions now to be observed among the fair owners. Almost every variety of dog has its own special toilet case containing the brushes, combs, sponges and other appliances for enabling it to be washed and dressed.

The ornaments suitable for a "boule-dog" would be by no means fitting for a "puli," nor does it at all follow that what would be admired on a "caniche" would be deemed in good taste for a "griffon." The latter, which is a long haired and curly haired dog much prized by all French women, is pitied and despised at this time of year if he is not close shaven over the body, leaving the lionlike mane which looks so particularly ridiculous to the English eye. Smooth terriers, who can not be thus embellished or disfigured, are often adorned with a little plain gold bracelet soldered above the fore-foot, and surmounted with a monogram; but it is essential that the leg encircled with this metal should be the left and not the right. Rough terriers have, on the other hand, a collar of bright metal, having a medallion or clasp upon it, sometimes with a photograph of the owner, or of some particular friend of hers, enclosed. The best bred "bulls" again, ought to wear the collar known as the "officer," with a colored ribbon—red, or blue for outdoor show, and white for the drawing room. Every dog having any claims to be well cared for must wear collars, or tail boots, when he goes out walking, and these should be of doekin, fastened with rings.

Yellow Fever Cases at New York.

New York Tribune, 24.

The city of Havana has been unusually free from yellow fever until recently, but now the disease is said to be prevalent there and the mortality large. On account of this fact the Health Officer of the port, Dr. Smith, has given orders that all vessels hereafter arriving from Havana shall not be permitted to come to the city until after their cargoes have been discharged at the upper quarantine and they have been thoroughly cleansed and fumigated. He said yesterday that while he did not want to be too stringent in regard to the rules concerning the health of the port, he thought it necessary to take measures of precaution. Up to the present time the cases of yellow fever arriving at this port have been isolated, and only one patient now remains in the hospital at quarantine, Charles Nelson, a seaman of the Havana steamship City of Alexandria, which arrived on Thursday last. The order to discharge cargoes from Havana vessels at the upper quarantine before coming to the city, was given ten days earlier than last year, but not so soon as in 1880.

The first case of yellow fever this year was on the Havana steamship City of Washington, which came here on July 12. A Sister of the Roman Catholic orders who had gone to Havana in May to do service in the hospitals fell sick. She died twenty-four hours after her arrival. The next case was that of Captain Albion F. Stahl, of the brigantine Stacy Clark, who recovered at the quarantine hospital. The bark Mary E. Leitchon arrived from Havana on July 13, and had left the mate in the hospital there sick with yellow fever. Hans Tel-lecker, a seaman, was stricken with the fever when the vessel was five days at sea. Arriving here he was removed to the hospital in a precarious state and died on the following day. When the steamship City of Alexandria arrived, Chas. Nelson and Judge S. Layton, of Chicago, were found to be suffering from yellow fever, and were removed to the hospital. Judge Layton was in an almost unconscious state for twenty-four hours after being transferred, and he died. He had been to Mexico in behalf of some English capitalists on a business trip. During the last National campaign he worked for the Republican party in the South. His body was buried at Seguin's Point, and not having any relatives, word was sent by Dr. Smith to his friends in Chicago. They sent for his effects, and will have his body taken there in cold weather.

When the steamship Halley arrived here on Wednesday from Rio Janeiro, one of the passengers was found to be suffering from smallpox. He was sent to the hospital on Hoffman Island, the other passengers were inspected, and the vessel fumigated, when she came to the city.

Never Happened.

The following fiction appears as a telegram from this city in yesterday's Nashville Banner:

"A considerable sensation was caused here to-day in the Magistrate's court by a suit instituted by Miss Hattie Fair, editress of the Sunday Semitar, against H. P. Ricketts, city editor of the Avalanche. Saturday morning Ricketts was in the Semitar office and carried away the picture of the fair young editress. She has treated the matter seriously and brought suit. Esquire Spelman decided that Ricketts should return the picture and pay the cost of the suit. Miss Fair was represented by Attorney General Turner and Ricketts by Thomas R. Boyle, the best poetry lawyer in Memphis."

A Greenbacker's Talk.

Nashville Special to Courier-Journal.

Beasley, the Greenback candidate for Governor, addressed a promiscuous crowd on the public square to-night. He spoke of the bolters as the rule or ruin Democrats. Though he thought the low tax men of Tennessee had been betrayed and crucified, every word he said showed that the compromise platform of June 29 is the only practical one on which the people can stand, though of course he did not intend to leave that impression. He applauded Wendell Phillips and General Weaver.

The Democratic county nominees are having a rally with bands of music.

The World's Chattanooga correspondent had an interview to-day with Duncan B. Cooper, of Maury county, who informed him that he had paid Colyer $75,000 for sixty-one shares of the American, a controlling interest. He says it will hereafter advocate Fussell, but will not be run in the interest of any man or set of men. It is not yet decided who will be the managing editor.

Miss Nilsson.

Manager Abbey says of the great cantatrice, Nilsson:

She will sail on October 14 in the Galia. She will also only in concerts and oratorios, and will appear first in Boston on November 1. She will sing fifty or more nights, as I may decide. I will bring a company with her, but only two of them are engaged yet. They are Signor Del Puente, the baritone, and Miss Hope Glenn, a contralto.

to. I find great difficulty in getting a suitable tenor. Miss Glenn is an American, who has been singing with much success in London for several years. There will probably be a pianist with the company, but most of the accompaniments will be played by the Mendelssohn Quintet Club, of Boston, whom I have engaged to accompany Miss Nilsson. I heard her in St. James Hall, London, on her second appearance after her husband's death. She was dressed in dark mourning and looked exceedingly well. Her voice has developed and become much fuller and more rounded since she was here. She sang divinely, and was received with an enthusiasm that I never saw equalled.

A Fish Joke.

At a dinner party Archbishop Whalley called out suddenly to the host, "Mr. ——" There was silence. "Mr. ——" what is the proper female companion of this John Dory?" After the usual number of guesses an answer came, "Anne Chovy."

Won a Suit.

Mrs. Kate Chase has succeeded in a suit for a division of certain property on Pearl street, Cincinnati, Ohio, once owned by Chief Justice Chase, and in which she has an undivided half interest, and a commission has been appointed by the court to partition the property, or in the event that it cannot be justly divided, to value the same.
